TEHRAN – The imposition of unilateral sanctions that have targeted health services in Iran are 'inhuman', the Iranian health minister told a World Health Organization (WHO) meeting in Geneva on Monday. Mohammad Hassan Tariqat said this policy is against the basic human rights and must be stopped. "If such unjustified inhuman measures are not stopped immediately then the international cooperation among nations will become meaningless," he explained.

193 countries have participated in the WHO meeting which was opened in Geneva on Monday.
